CONCORDIA SEMINARY

July 27, 2017

Dear Friends in Christ,

We have had record breaking temperatures in St. Louis over the last two weeks, but that hasn't stopped new students from moving onto campus. The Food Bank is open during the summer months so we can provide food for new students and returning students alike. The Seminary gardens are ripe with fresh produce including, kale, Swiss chard, peppers, onions, tomatoes, basil, parsley, sage, thyme, oregano, mint and much more. Students are free to pick and use the gardens at any time. The Food Bank continues to receive free bread on Mondays and Fridays each week and we have started receiving fresh produce from Illinois and Missouri farmers, including corn and green beans. But most importantly, we are blessed to receive monetary donations, food donations and coupons that continue to sustain the Food Bank. How fortunate we are to have donors who are always there to help! Thank you for remembering the Food Bank during the summer months.

One of the primary goals of the Food Bank is to provide free food and household items to Concordia Seminary students. I am a dietitian, so my goal goes even further to provide a more well-rounded nutrition based diet to all of the students here at the Seminary. I feel it is very important to provide food to fuel the mind, so the students are able to concentrate on their studies and to do God's work. Thank you again for your support.

God's blessings to you,

Cindy Bunte
